SAM JEVON

Sam Jevon (b. 1968) based in London, began creating work at Submit to Love Studios in 2009. A completely self-taught artist, Sam is famed for her detailed line drawings; almost exclusively in black and white ink on paper. At the studio she has earned the nickname the "Queen of Wonky" for her unique illustration style. She wears this crown proudly; a celebration of her creative achievements and artistic progress.

Buildings, people and animals become curiously crooked and contorted under her guidance, however, these marks are made with true intent. When at work, Sam displays a level of concentration akin to an architect; carefully plotting out hundreds of distinct lines on the page. Her use of shading and texture distort traditional perspectives; whilst dragging the eye into the depths of each piece.

SUBMIT TO LOVE STUDIOS

Submit to Love Studios is home to a collective of self-taught artists - all of whom have survived brain injuries. Our studio has developed a set of unique practices and interests, refined over more than a decade. The studio is based at Headway East London, a charity supporting people affected by brain injury.

FANTASY DETAIL

This colouring book was made in collaboration with curator Lisa Slominski. A regular guest at the East London studio to visit with the artists, Lisa virtually collaborated with Sam to transform her drawings into a colouring book for others to enjoy while in isolation due to the COVID19 crisis.

The theme of alternate ways of communication is omnipresent globally with current closures and instructions to stay home. Artists from the Submit to Love Studios have been implementing and exploring alternative communication as part of their daily lives, through Fantasy Detail we invite all participants not only to colour but to share a thought or feeling in each creation.
